

COMMENT OF THE DAY

Territorial Waters

PIRACY, always a popular and remunerative occupation in the China Sea (whether with official sanction or otherwise) seems to have broken out on rather a large scale off the Peruvian coast. Greek millionaire Aristotele Onassis has lost a number of his whaling vessels to the Peruvian navy and air force. Five of the whalers were caught inside "territorial waters"—200 miles by Peru-Chilean reckoning—and the factory ship "Olympic Challenger" another 180 miles away. Peru claims that Mr Onassis was pirating their whales and he in turn says that his ships were pirated. According to the Chilean Foreign Minister his country, Peru and Ecuador, who are not members of the International Whaling Commission, fixed their territorial limit against foreign whalers at 200 miles. It is natural that the rapid destruction of these pelagic heavyweights should awaken fears as they cannot be easily replaced as the mammal breeds very slowly. This fact was long ago recognised by the Commission and as far as the Antarctic was concerned set a quota for the season. Countries with offshore whaling interests also set quotas for hunting, but it is highly improbable that the three South American west coast nations' decision against foreign operators is based on valid grounds.

SINCE World War I various countries have extended their home waters and have gone far beyond the traditional three-mile limit. The majority of disputes on this subject have been over fishing rights and the protection of marine life. Britain, for example, has been arguing with Iceland for over two years—an argument precipitated by The Hague Court ruling allowing Norway to draw a four-mile line around her coast connecting various extreme points to be used as a base-line. Many miles of what were once international waters were thus denied to foreign fishermen by the very nature of the indented coastline. Iceland quickly followed the precedent. Whether Mr Onassis' fleet should have been where it was (although he knew the feeling of the three countries) is immaterial. The incident only emphasises more fully the fact that it is high time that the International Law Commission set up by the United Nations decided on a set of rules defining not only sea limits, but also air space. To do so, provided the rules were acceptable, would alleviate a great deal of world tension.

BEVANITES TOE THE PARTY LINE

House Approves German Rearmament Treaty
FOUR PACIFISTS FORCE VOTE

London, Nov. 18. The House of Commons tonight endorsed the nine-power Treaty on West German sovereignty and rearmament by 264 votes to four. The vote was forced by a tiny group of Labour left-wingers, including pacifists. But the bulk of the Labour Party, including Mr Aneurin Bevan's left-wing adherents did not vote. Britain is the first of the signatories to obtain Parliamentary approval of the treaty. The other countries are the United States, Canada, France, West Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg. The Labour Party official leaders approve the treaty but they decided the Labour line in the debate should be abstention from any vote so as to avoid a split in their own ranks.

WHAT MALENKOV TOLD BEVAN

Mr Aneurin Bevan, British left-wing Labour Party leader, told the House during the debate that the Russian Premier, Georgi Malenkov, had told him in Moscow that certain elements were coming into power in Western Germany which were there before the war.

He said that in his talks in Moscow recently, he did not gather that the Russian leaders were worried about the 12 divisions that would provide Germany's contribution to western Europe defence.

Mr Bevan said that Mr Malenkov had said to him: "It is not possible for us to try to bring about the unification of Germany under the unified German Government, this is an evocable step (West German rearmament) is taken."

"SURRENDER TO U.S." Mr Bevan, whose section of the Labour Party is against German rearmament, asserted that Britain had "surrendered to the pressure of Mr Foster Dulles, American Secretary of State, who has committed himself all along to these 12 divisions."

Mr Bevan urged Sir Winston Churchill, British Premier, to give an assurance that between ratification and the physical implementation of the treaty of German rearmament, he would seek further meetings with the Soviet Union.

No one believed the Russian idea of free elections in Eastern Germany was the same as the West, he said. But he was convinced the Russians were prepared to "go a long way towards modifying their attitude towards German free elections if they believed they could prevent what they fear so much—the organisation of Germany into two armed camps."

HE SURPRISES NATO Mr Bevan would make "very little difference to the military balance but a great deal to the political atmosphere."

Mr Bevan said he and his friends had always supported NATO. They had taken the line along to those 12 divisions, he said, but the Soviet Union saw herself entitled to mobilise the forces round her border. Britain had the right to mobilise all the allies she could get.

"The danger from Communism arises not primarily from military but from social, political and economic sources," he said. "It would be possible to spend so much on manpower to meet the military menace that we could not meet the other menaces."

A-BOMBS FOR GERMANY Mr Bevan said it was assumed that if Germany was rearmament the West would be in a strong position to negotiate with Russia.

"I think we are entitled to say that other countries should share this burden," he said. Mr Harold Macmillan, Minister of Defence, said it was now doubtful whether the Soviet forces at present in the forward area could defeat the West's forces without reinforcement—that was "real progress."

TOTAL FORCES "Even so, the Soviet forces could be increased to well over 100 divisions within 30 days. Total forces that could be mobilised were about 400 divisions."

"In that context the 12 German divisions with supporting air and naval forces standing ready in the vital centre sector of Europe are vital for defence. Referring to Mr Gaitskell's remark about sharing the burden of costs, Mr Macmillan said a logical mathematical system could not be forced on NATO countries. But the British Government would do all it could to see it was fair as possible."

Leaflets Thrown During Eden's Speech London, Nov. 18. A group of three or four youths threw leaflets into the Chamber during Sir Anthony Eden's speech in the House of Commons today.

Sir Anthony laughed off the incident and continued his speech. The leaflets bore the words "No Arms for the Germans". On the back of the leaflets were pictures of German war-time concentration camps.—France-Press.

But the Soviet Union had already said that if Germany were rearmament, she would take additional measures. The situation then would be another balance of power at a high level of expenditure. "Are we not deluding ourselves into believing that 12 additional German divisions will cause the Russians to surrender something they won't surrender now?" he asked. Mr Bevan said they had been informed this afternoon that though Germany would not be allowed to make atom and hydrogen bombs, the treaty did not rule that she might not possess them. They may receive them from America, he said. "Do you think people in this country will be secure against the prospects of war if German armies under Nazi officers have atom bombs?"

ATTITUDE COMMENT Mr Clement Attlee, Leader of the Opposition, said Mr Aneurin Bevan had argued with "great dialectical skill" in favour of doing nothing at present.

"But eventually he carried his argument so far that he really destroyed it," he added.

Mr Attlee said he could sympathise with the feelings of those who strongly disliked the idea of rearming the Germans. It was logical but not practical. Members applauded when he said: "I have not found so far any alternative suggestion that does not expose us to more dangers and difficulties than these present proposals."

GAITSKELL ON COSTS Earlier, Mr Hugh Gaitskell, former Labour Chancellor of the Exchequer, contended that other Western European nations should share the cost of British forces being kept on the Continent until the end of the century.

Mr Gaitskell said the implication of Government statements on the cost of keeping troops on the Continent was that Britain would have to find about £700 million sterling a year in the year 1950-51 and after.

Peking Claims
Army Camp
Hit By Bombs

London, Nov. 18. Chinese Communists tonight claimed direct hits on anti-aircraft positions and a Nationalist army camp in a bomber raid today on Yushan island northeast of Tachen off the China coast. The New China news agency said the bomber went over "in waves" and all returned safely to base. The Chinese Nationalists earlier said the raid was made by four bombers with six fighter escort planes. They admitted "several casualties" but said one raider was "presumed damaged."—Reuter.

M.C.C. Bats
Fall
To Lindwall's
Attack

Brisbane, Nov. 19. The M.C.C. came up against Australia's high speed bowler Ray Lindwall today for the first time in the present tour. Out went double century score, Mike Cowdrey and Trevor Bailey with the score at 17.

Things looked bad for the M.C.C. when Peter May fell to Ron Archer's bowling one run later.

Then in came Compton and with Reg Simpson the two held out until lunch when the score was 85 for three wickets. Simpson's score was 50 not out and "Dashing Denis" Compton's, 31 not out.

Ray Lindwall bowling at a hot pace, had Colin Cowdrey caught for four and spearheaded Trevor Bailey stumps with a ball that shot down the pitch like a blazing meteor.

2 IN 4 BALLS Lindwall, who now weighs one and a half stone less than when he was in England, got rid of Cowdrey and Bailey in the course of four balls of his second over.

With May's departure soon afterwards, it was left to Simpson fighting to re-establish himself as an opening bat, and Denis Compton to rally the score.

Lindwall had then taken two wickets for 27 and Archer one for 24.

The teams are: Queensland: K. Archer, captain; K. Mackay, C. Harvey, P. Burns, R. Archer, J. Bratchford, R. Lindwall, B. Flynn, W. Groul, W. Walsley and N. V. Raymer. Twelfth man: E. Toovey.

M.C.C.: P.B.H. May, captain; T. E. Bailey, R. T. Simpson, M. C. Cowdrey, D.C.S. Compton, T. V. Wilson, A. V. Bedser, J. E. Statham, J. H. Wardle, J. McCann and K. Andrew. Twelfth man: R. Appleyard.

M.C.C.

Brisbane, Nov. 19. Simpson and Compton settled down after the luncheon adjournment and scored quickly all round the wicket.

The fourth wicket, have now added 212 runs to the score, with Simpson 117 not out and Compton 105 not out, the second highest 124 for three. Simpson's century included 12 fours and Compton's 19 fours.

TORIES HOLD KEY
SEAT WITH BIGGER MAJORITY

Liverpool, Nov. 18. Sir Winston Churchill's Conservative Government scored an important political success in a by-election here today by retaining the marginal constituency of West Derby, with an increased majority.

The result declared tonight was Mr John Wooliam, Conservative, 21,155, Mr Bill Fenton, Labour, 16,550—Conservative majority 2,595.

Mr Wooliam, 27, a barrister, becomes the youngest member of Parliament.

The Conservative majority at the 1951 General Election was 1,707, and Government supporters are therefore greatly heartened by today's verdict.

Favourable Augury

They consider their increased majority in this formerly narrow held constituency a favourable augury for the general election, expected some time next year.

Conservatives have now fought 40 by-elections since Sir Winston Churchill returned to power in 1951 without losing a single seat won or held at the General Election then.

A Government defeat at West Derby would have been a major setback at a time when its supporters believe the Conservative stock is rising in the country as a whole.

The composition of the 64-seat House of Commons now becomes as follows:

Conservative and allies	294
Labour	254
Liberal	6
Irish Nationalists	2
Irish Labour	1
Vacant seats	1

Havenga
To Succeed
Dr Malan

Johannesburg, Nov. 19. The South African Cabinet has agreed that the Finance Minister, Mr Nicholas Havenga, will succeed Dr Daniel Malan when he retires as Prime Minister on November 30, the Rand Daily Mail reported today.

Quoting a "good source," this newspaper said Dr Malan achieved the final political triumph of his career in having the Cabinet accept his nomination at yesterday's Cabinet meeting for which he went specially from Cape Town to Pretoria.

The other candidate was Mr J. G. Strijdom, the Minister for Lands, who is now on holiday in Europe.—Reuter.

A Tunnel Under The Thames

London, Nov. 18. A new road through the square mile of the city of London, a new tunnel under the River Thames, underground garages and a review of the 80 miles an hour speed limit—these are some of the proposals announced by Mr John Boyd Carpenter, Minister of Transport, to deal with Greater London's daily traffic tie-ups.

The new road—it is about a mile long and 86 feet wide—is planned by the Corporation of the City of London. Mr Boyd Carpenter said he hoped to approve soon the first instalment of the new road.

"And if the Corporation carry out their imaginative plan for incorporating an underground car park in it, this will help the parking problem in the city."

Work is expected to start on the new tunnel next year. It will span the five foot deep cut in the Thames bed to Portico on the Essex bank. The cost will be £2,500,000.—China Mail Special.

New Move By
Panama
In Whaling
Dispute

New York, Nov. 18. Panama submitted her dispute with Peru over the seizure of Panamanian whaling ships owned by the Greek-born millionaire, Mr Aristotele Onassis, to the Organisation of American States. It was feared tonight.

Shor Echebillo A. Morales, Panamanian permanent representative to the United Nations, called on Mr Dag Hammarskjöld, the United Nations Secretary-General, today to tell him of this decision.

He is reported to have told him that Panama was following international law by submitting the dispute to the Organisation, which consists of all the 21 American Republics.

EVEN SECURITY COUNCIL Senior Morales added, however, that Panama reserved the right to take the dispute to the United Nations or even the Security Council if she did not receive satisfactory consideration from the American Organisation.

He told reporters that Panama hoped to settle the dispute "amicably" as between two friendly nations through the Organisation.

It is believed that Panama may raise the matter in the General Assembly's Legal Committee when it discusses the final item on its agenda dealing with the economic development of fisheries.—Reuter.

Senate Interrupts Proceedings To Meet Mr France

Washington, Nov. 18.

The United States Senate interrupted its proceedings today to receive French Prime Minister Pierre Mendes-France in an unprogrammed appearance before that body.

The Prime Minister addressed the Senate briefly and received three standing ovations during his appearance there.

His visit to the Senate was uncheduled and unexpected. He had been invited to confer with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and had gone there after meeting earlier today with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

INTRODUCED

The Vice-President escorted the Prime Minister to the Senate floor and introduced him. The Senate had been debating a motion to censure Senator Joseph McCarthy for action unbecoming his position.

It interrupted for the visit of the Premier, and gave M. Mendes-France a standing ovation on his entry.

The Vice-President spoke briefly and then gave M. Mendes-France an opportunity to make a few remarks. He got the second ovation then.

He expressed France's "gratitude" for the United States war and postwar aid. The Senate rose a third time and applauded at the end of his remarks.

Then the Senators were invited to file past their guest who stood beside Mr. Nixon in the well of the chamber, and to shake hands with him.

M. Mendes-France spoke in English, which was easily understood, although flavoured with French accent.

He said it was "an unexpected honour to be invited to address the Senate" and he thanked the members for the reception they gave him.

ALL THE FEELINGS

"I am sorry not to be able to speak better than I do and express all the feelings in my heart toward your country," M. Mendes-France said.

Mr. Nixon presiding over the session, told him that if any United States Senator were called to address the French Parliament he doubted he could speak as well in French "as you have in English today."

Senate Republican leader William F. Knowland and Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson then delivered brief welcoming speeches.

Sen. Knowland described France as "our oldest ally, having participated in our great war of independence."

Noting that France was an ally in World War II, Sen. Knowland said he was confident France would be "standing by our side" in any future difficulties.

He said there was a "deep love" for France throughout the United States.

Sen. Johnson said M. Mendes-France's appearance before the Senate marked this as a "great day and occasion for members of the Senate."

"We are glad that you have come here to help work out with our leaders some of the problems facing civilisation," Sen. Johnson said.

CONFIDENT

He said he was confident that France and the United States in mutual friendship would work together for what is best for free people everywhere.

After the Senate ceremony, the Premier returned to the Foreign Relations Committee room where he met for approximately 20 minutes with members of that committee and the Senate Armed Services Group.

Members later said that M. Mendes-France had not had time for a full discussion as they would have liked, but said he gave them a brief description of the problems which he faces in France and in Europe.

United Press.

Senator adds M. Mendes-France had "very cordial and very satisfying" discussions here today with President Eisenhower and Mr. John Foster Dulles, United States Secretary of State.

U.S. BACKING

The Premier and Mr. Eisenhower talked for an hour on lowering East-West tension, relations between France and Germany and France's desire for American backing for the new Franco-German agreement on the Saar.

It was reliably stated that the President had indicated his Government would be prepared to express sympathy and support for the new Saar agreement if both countries ratified it.

Dominici Acted Like Museum Guide Says Witness

Digne, Nov. 18.

Witnesses at the Drummond triple-murder trial testified today that old Gaston Dominici took great "pleasure" and acted "every bit like a museum guide" in showing tourists the exact spot on his lonely farm where the prominent British family was shot and battered to death.

They painted a ghoulish picture of an old man full of importance, who went up to tourists offering to show them the exact spot where each body was found and then hung around afterwards waiting for a tip.

Dominici is on trial for the murder here. The two witnesses, Professor I. Marion, a bio-chemist at Edinburgh, and his wife spoke with evident emotion.

ON VISIT

The Drummonds had been visiting them at their villa Beaupre, at Villefranche on the Riviera when they took off for a two-day trip to Digne, two years ago last August.

They had promised 11-year-old Elizabeth she could see her first bull fight.

Prof. Marion, tall, thin and greying, took the stand first. He spoke in English and his statement was translated for the benefit of the court.

It was the day of the Drummonds' funeral. Prof. Marion, his wife and the British Consul from Marseilles went to Dominici's farm at Grand-Terre.

"An old man approached us," Prof. Marion testified, "and offered to show us around. He pointed out the spot where each of the bodies was found."

"It was Gaston Dominici. He acted like a museum guide and got the impression he was waiting for a tip."

Dominici agreed he had shown the British visitors around but when the interpreter translated Prof. Marion's statement about the tip, he jumped to his feet.

"DON'T ASK TIP"

"People from this region don't ask tips for teaching anyone anything," the patriarch of Grand-Terre protested indignantly.

The crowd of local farmers murmured in approval.

Mrs. Marion confirmed her husband's statements when called to the stand.

Prof. Marion, who described himself as a very close friend of the Drummonds, denied a report that the famous nutrition expert was in France on a mission for the British intelligence—a rumour which has cropped up from time to time in the case.

He also told the Court's President, M. Marcel Bousquet, that Sir Jack had never been parachuted into France during the war. He described his friend as "a great scientist and a pleasant person."

Prof. Marion said it was coincidental that the Drummond family happened to camp just 200 yards from Gaston Dominici's land that fatal moonlight night of August 4, 1952.

When the Drummonds passed through Digne on August 1, en route from the Riviera, they saw a poster advertising a bull fight. Little Elizabeth, who had never seen one, asked her parents to take her to one and they bought the tickets then and there. They saw the fight, Prof. Marion said, but that night when they stopped to camp in the wild countryside in the Lurs area they were killed.

HARD MAN

Earlier in the day, medical witnesses testified that Gaston Dominici was sane, was healthy and was a rebut specimen who would still put away two to three litres of wine a day without bad effects.

"He was a hard man," Dr. Pierre Merland said, "hard on other people and hard on himself."

Dr. Henry Dragon, the local physician who had examined the bodies, made these points.

Little Elizabeth died from two blows on the head.

Since the second killed her instantly, and she was still alive when seen by Gaston's son Gastave, Dominici, she must have been killed by the second blow some time after she was first stunned and, he thought, in a different spot. Her body was not rigid when found, whereas the bodies of her parents were "hard as wood."

NOT ASSAULTED

The doctor said neither Elizabeth nor her mother had been assaulted before death.

Another medical witness testified that Lady Anne Drummond died instantly of her wounds, but that Sir Jack lived for half to three-quarters of an hour after he was shot and bled to death.—United Press.

N.C.O.'s Were Not Unkind To Recruits

Catterick, Nov. 18.

The British Army conducted a two-day inquiry at this vast North of England soldier training camp into reports that raw recruits were terrorised by their non-commissioned officers.

More than 200 recruits were questioned about allegations that N.C.O.'s, fired air pistols in the barrack rooms; took money for polishing boots and arranging kit; and made life generally unbearable.

The investigation revealed yesterday that most of the allegations were groundless but that some N.C.O.'s would be charged.

The stories of bad treatment emerged when a 19-year-old recruit wrote home about them to his father who passed them on to a newspaper. They were published.

But the recruit confessed afterwards that he listed his complaints in the letter "for a joke".

Lieutenant-Colonel C. D. Elliott, who commands a signals training unit, said that two corporals would be charged for firing air pistols at each other. Recruits had said they were in no danger during the incident and were not scared. One corporal would be court-martialed for grasping a recruit's collar when on parade.—China Mail Special.

The Hongkong Jockey Club's Fourth Race Meeting will be held over two consecutive Saturday afternoons, the first tomorrow and the second on November 27. Each day's programme will consist of eight events, the first saddling bell will be rung at 1.30 p.m. and the first race will commence promptly at 2 p.m.

The most important event tomorrow is the Perth Handicap, which on Saturday, November 27, the St Andrew's Stakes will form the main attraction. Here are my estimates of the chances.

FIRST RACE

Perth Handicap: Six Furlongs. The opening race will be contested by Class 8 ponies with novice jockeys as pilots. The following should be worth watching—Acroplane (Mr. H. K. Hung) Easy-going (Mr. Shih), Amber (Mr. Koo Koo-tzen), and Desert Gold (Mr. Andrew Chan).

Acroplane has disappointed its supporters on its last two outings but may make up for it this time. Easy-going could make a go of it and Amber, given a good start, may upset all calculations.

Desert Gold is another pony to bear in mind as an outsider.

SECOND RACE

Glasgow Handicap: Six Furlongs. This event is confined to Class 8 ponies. As a result of its winning the York Handicap (Second Section) over the mile at the 2nd Race Meeting, Festival View (Mr. Beetho) should attract the most interest among punters and should win again.

However, Strathpeffer (Mr. Plumby) and Matador (Mr. Chen Poo) should not be treated lightly as both are capable of giving a good account of themselves.

May Blossom (Mr. Yen Ching-lun) and Tunc-phong (Mr. C. A. Lee) are good as outsiders only.

THIRD RACE

Craigston Handicap (First Section): From 2-Mile Post. The first lot of 1954 ponies, Class B, will figure in this event and among the entries I favour Hunter Munica (Mr. Ostroumoff) to take the major prize with King A (Mr. Ph) and Oceanic Sky (Mr. Chun Kit) fighting out the second and third positions.

A pony which could cause an upset is Another Victory (Mr. Tsai), while Free Success (Mr. Wei) is by no means out of the race.

FOURTH RACE

Perth Handicap: One Mile. This is the main event of the day, and is confined to Class 1 ponies.

Fire-glo (Mr. Sampan), which has shown the form in morning gallops, should have a good chance of scoring here.

Fire-glo will be taken out by Mr. Kwok, and I expect it to give Firefly a good run for the first place.

Duke (Mr. Wei) is also fighting it and will be in at the finish.

Joiner (Mr. Ostroumoff) is good as an outsider.

Craigston Handicap (Second Section): From 2-Mile Post. The four ponies, which will probably catch the judges' eyes in this race for the second section of 1954 ponies, Class B, are Good-Girl (Mr. Liu), Orange Beauty (Mr. Edwin Mok), Thousand Miles (Mr. H. C. Woo), and Dilly (Mr. Plumby).

Good-Girl is my choice and I think it should win, but Orange Beauty is not to be ignored as this pony is quite dependable and I should not be surprised to see it having a say at the finish.

Thousand Miles and Dilly are in good form at the moment and can be relied on to give the above ponies a good fight.

Blue Bird (Mr. C. A. Lee) and Giddyup (Mr. H. C. Ph) are both in fine form and should fight for the last two places in the race.

Miner (Mr. K. K. Kwok) is generally believed to be a higher class animal and I don't see any reason why it should not win.

PAY DAY (Mr. Wei)

is running over its favourite distance and is a pretty good each-way investment.

SEVENTH RACE

Box Handicap: One Mile. This race is for 1954 ponies, Class C. Among the entries, Scorilla (Mr. R. K. Chung), which was officially fourth in the Hongkong Stakes over the mile at the 1st Race Meeting, looks the best. A win here is indicated.

Advancement (Mr. H. C. Woo) can move fairly fast and would not have any difficulty in securing second position. For the third position Korra (Mr. Ostroumoff) and Ringdala (Mr. Boycott) will fight out the issue.

EIGHTH RACE

Tran Handicap: From 2-Mile Post. This is the final event of the first day in which Class 4 ponies will battle out the finish.

The two best ponies in this race are, undoubtedly, Every Day (Mr. Oliveira) and Bright Bay (Mr. Chung).

Every Day won the Broadwood Handicap over the mile at the 1st Race Meeting and, judging by that performance, it has a good chance of scoring a win here.

Bright Bay has shown improvement under the careful guidance of Mr. Chung, during morning gallops and must therefore be seriously considered.

Air Power (Mr. C. A. Lee) and High Speed (Mr. Ostroumoff) are also dangerous and must not be overlooked.

CLASSIFICATION

The following are the alterations to the Hong Kong Club's Classification List.

To Class 2.—New Jersey from Class A.

To Class 3.—Glenshiel from Class A; Royalty from Class A.

FEW CHANGES LIKELY IN THE ENGLAND TEAM TO PLAY GERMANY

Says DENNIS HART

Everything seems to be against England's soccer selectors. Even the weather. At Wembley last Wednesday week their latest choice, which had incurred a torrent of criticism, played and beat Wales. The least the selectors could have expected for their team was a fair showing. They didn't get it.

Footwork, positional play, ball control, were all but obscured in a downpour which was well under way at the kick-off and which, this being Britain, ended with the final whistle.

So now the selectors face the task of picking the team to meet Germany on December 1, knowing little more than before.

The question they must face is how to judge the players on their Welsh showing which, considering conditions, was brilliant in the forward line, for instance, young Frank Blunstone, on the left wing, did not have a memorable match.

TREMEMENDOUS ORDEAL

Yet his was a tremendous ordeal. Playing in his first international he had to control the white plastic-covered ball, which was always covered with a film of rain, like trying to play billiards with a grease-tipped cue.

Nor did he get the best of support.

Ronnie Allen, playing under orders not to "room too much," was seldom in the picture as centre-forward. His thunder was stolen by three-goal Bentley.

Bentley was listed as inside-right, in effect, he was the centre-forward. This is the position he will probably fill in the side to meet Germany. For if the selectors base any judgment at all on Wednesday's showing, Allen will be out.

Bentley, moving to the centre, will make room for a thrustful, scheming, inside forward of the Johnny Haynes type. If Blunstone is given another chance that is the only likely change in attack.

Inside-left, Len Shackleton, was brilliant as we have seen him in club games. His passing was slow. But remember the conditions.

As for the fifth forward, if the match proved anything it was that maestro Stanley Matthews is still the daddy of all right-wingers. He controlled that slippery ball as though he had it on a string.

IMPROVES WITH AGE

What more can one say of this wonder of the soccer world? Everything that can be written about him has been. All I can add is that like good wine he improves with age.

Now he is no mere ball juggler. His passing is pinpoint. The centre that made the first goal curled past three defenders and landed on the precise heading spot of Bentley's forehead without the head-right having to move an inch.

And Matthews has added to his repertoire a left-foot shot which he unleashed from the most unexpected positions; the left wing sometimes.

England's defence was not so impressive in victory as were the forwards.

They had more to do. They were up against an inside-forward trio of Ford, Charles and Allchurch which would have tested the sound barrier.

But it was demonstrated effectively that England cannot afford the luxury of two attacking wing halves. Phillips and Slater, playing well upfield, threw a tremendous ambush at work on to centre-half Billy Wright, who emerged with flying colours, and on to the full backs and inside-left Len Shackleton, who was often forced back to cover.

And by coming up into the attack the halves cluttered up the forward line.

NEVER AGAIN

Never again must England field more than one attacking half-back, and that could be one too many. A wing-half can help the attack, but from his own position. Nothing is harder and faster in soccer than to be admitted, times when it is to his side's advantage for him to burst through.

But he should not go on to the field with that alone in mind. Primarily, his job is to play the opposing inside forward out of the game.

Against Germany, England may recall a tried and trusted servant, Portsmouth's Jimmy Dickinson, or one of the bright young brigade, Manchester

United's burly 'babe', Duncan Edwards.

Full backs, Byrne and Staniforth turned in workmanlike performances against Wales. Again, remembering conditions and the fervour of the Welsh attacks, this is commendation.

The same applies to goalkeeper Wood.

So, despite all, England can be proud of her players, and her selectors. The selectors have not let down the public, nor the players the selectors.

FIFA Defines An Amateur Footballer

Stockholm, Nov. 18.

The Executive Committee of the International Federation of Football Associations, meeting here today, approved an article defining the meaning of "amateur".

The article states:

"(1) Players who have taken part in a football match or training session and who have been refunded only their expenses for travel, necessary maintenance and hotel charges and those who in special cases have been specifically authorized by their national associations to receive expenses for equipment, and insurance against accidents during play, and whilst travelling, are considered to be amateur players."

"(2) Those who take part in matches under the jurisdiction of their national association and receive an allowance for wages lost may also be considered as amateur players. But the allowance must be in equitable proportion of the actual wages of the player which have been lost."

"(3) Each player must sign a receipt for all monies received and allowed by the two preceding clauses."

"NON-AMATEURS"

The approved article also declared that players who received regular wages, payments for attending functions, gifts or any other allowances or who had only "apparent" fictitious or sham employment would be considered professionals or non-amateurs.

Under no circumstances would such players be allowed to take part in the Olympic Games or any other competition arranged by the International Federation itself, which was restricted to amateur players only.

The Committee decided that its next meeting would be held in the spring of 1955 and the next Congress in June, 1956. They also approved the acquisition of a building in Zurich where they will have their headquarters.

The 1956 Congress will be held in Lisbon.

In a statement issued after the meeting, the Committee said that according to its object, the Federation accepted two classes of footballers, amateur and professional. Because of variations in definitions of players by affiliated national associations, a third class of players was now referred to as the "non-amateur" under contract or licence.

World Shooting Championships

Carnegie, Nov. 18.

August Westgaard of the United States won the World Championship for shooting with a small bore rifle, prone, at 50 metres, equalling the world record of 400 points, according to unofficial results at the World Shooting Championships here today.

Sweden won the team competition with 1,987 points, second was the Soviet Union with 1,986 and third Finland, also with 1,986.

A. Bogdanov of Russia scored 390 points—a new world record in a 22 calibre rifle, kneeling, at 50 metres, today, according to unofficial results.

The previous record of 394 was set by V. Ilone of Finland. Bogdanov was competing in one of the four World Championship events scheduled for today—kneeling, prone and three-position in the 22 rifle, and the single-shot running deer.

Scottish League Wins 5-0

Glasgow, Nov. 18.

The Scottish League beat the League of Ireland by five goals to nil when they met here tonight in an Inter-League soccer match, postponed from last night because of fog. Half time score was three-nil.

The Scotsmen were playing very good football and the visitors, relying too much on powerful kicking, could make little impression on the door of the Scots.

The Irish finished the game one man short after Collins, their goalkeeper, had dived at the feet of an onrushing attacker and dislocated his shoulder.—Reuter.

ELSIE FIELD IN ZURICH

Zurich, Nov. 18. Dr. Elsie Field, sister of Herman and Noel Field, both recently released from prison in East Europe, arrived here today by air from London, with her identified woman believed to be Herman's wife.

British European Airways officials maintained strict secrecy regarding the woman who left the airport for the city immediately after she was hurried past Customs officials.

Latest reports here say Herman Field, who was freed from a Polish goal last month, is due to leave Warsaw tonight for Zurich. His wife's arrival has been expected for the last day or two.

She has been living in a London suburb since 1949, when her husband disappeared.

Dr. Field left Zurich at once for Vienna by air. She was thought to have gone there to welcome Mr and Mrs Noel Field, who were recently released from a Hungarian goal. —Reuter.

HEIR FOR PREMIER BARONET

Edinburgh, Nov. 18. The 35-year-old Duchess of Roxburghe today gave birth to a baby boy in an Edinburgh nursing home. Mother and child, who becomes heir to the dukedom, were said to be "doing well."

The Duchess and the 40-year-old Duke, premier Baronet of Scotland and one of Britain's wealthiest men, were married last January. About a month before their previous marriages were dissolved on the same day in the Court of Session here.

The former Duchess, 38-year-old god-child of King George V and Queen Mary, mentioned the present Duchess in her divorce petition, alleging misconduct with the Duke.

YEAR LONG FEUD

The former Duchess and the Duke waged a year long feud in which he tried to have her evicted from the ducal seat, Fife's Castle, near Weddurg, Scotland.

The row ended when the Duchess suddenly walked out of the Castle, promising never to return. The reason for the feud remained a secret between her and the Duke.

The present Duchess, formerly Mrs Elizabeth Church, is the ex-wife of a British Army officer, Lieutenant-Colonel James Cunningham Church, who commanded the First Battalion of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders in Hongkong.

The Colonel had cited the Duke—Cham Mail Special.

Women Occupy Important Place In Labour Force

Ottawa, Nov. 18.

The creation of the new Women's Bureau, set up by the Federal Department of Labour, marks Government recognition of the enormously important place which women have come to occupy in Canada's labour force.

Today, five times as many women are employed in Canada as in 1900, although the population, now 15,000,000, has only doubled since then.

On Canada's labour force, including all fully employed persons, which at the summer peak reaches 5,500,000, no less than 20 per cent are at present women. Well over 1,000,000 women are at work even in the slack season.

Furthermore, there has been a great increase in the number of married women with jobs. Fifteen years ago, before World War II, only ten per cent of women at work were married.

CHANGED PATTERN

The war changed the national pattern and today the proportion has gone up to 30 per cent.

The Women's Bureau is designed to assist women to get better pay, working conditions and jobs, and to study welfare problems. Its first director is Miss Marion Royce, a Canadian sociologist who has served with the international staff of the Young Women's Christian Association in Washington and Geneva.

Many factors enter into this changing complexion of Canadian labour in a changing Canada and a changing twentieth century world.

Warline and postwar industrialisation here has created all sorts of new "desk jobs" suited to women. Improved mechanisation has made it possible for women to do many factory jobs, previously beyond their strength.

Social security laws such as those providing family allowances, unemployment insurance and old age pensions, have called for an army of clerical workers in the civil service, most of whom are women.

Urbanisation of Canada has contributed greatly, as this nation of "country mice" gives way to the "town mice." When Canada first became a nation, in 1867, only two out of ten Canadians lived in cities. Today, six out of ten Canadians are urban dwellers, with the trek away from the farms and into the towns becoming more marked every year.

Thus, more women need to work to buy the food which they used to raise themselves on farms.

MANY GAPS LEFT

As in other countries, the war left many gaps for women to fill in industry and commerce, but the return of peace did not see the trek "back to the kitchens" which had been confidently expected by mere males.

Many liked the independence which came from having their own pay cheque while others liked the work itself and found it more rewarding than house-keeping.

Since the Canadian birthrate is higher than that of the United States and almost twice as high as that of Britain, it is obvious that Canadian women are not shrinking the primary function of women.

Much of the increase in the number of working women with full time jobs can be explained by the employment of older women, especially married women whose children have grown up. In addition, women generally live longer than men, with the result that there are many widows ready to work.

One part of the Canadian pattern is not true of older countries, such as those of Europe. In Canada, working as a whole have higher educational qualifications than working men, many of whom, such as loggers and other primary workers, need little schooling.

Only 35 per cent of the men in the Canadian labour force, compared with 52 per cent of the women, have had between nine and 12 years of schooling. Only nine per cent of the working men, compared with 13 per cent of the working women, have had more than 13 years of schooling.

WOMEN IN OFFICES

The explanation is that far more women than men work in offices, where educational requirements are higher than in heavy industry.

Establishment of the new Women's Bureau, to look after the interests of Canadian women workers, represents a victory for the women's organizations which have long pressed for special consideration of the problems of women in industry and commerce.

Particularly, it is a triumph for the four women Members of Parliament and the five women Senators, most of whom are newcomers to the Canadian Parliament.

At the same time, Canada's present Minister of Labour, Mr. Milton Gregg, VC, has been notably sympathetic to their representations and it was due to his insistence that the innovation was approved by the Cabinet and carried by Parliament.

Mr. Gregg has expressed the hope that Miss Royce will in time become senior adviser to the Government on all matters affecting women workers—which would give her a "watchdog" over one million souls—China Mail Special.
